

DIOCESE OF DALLAS

Scholarship applications open to students

SUBMITTED STORY

In 2004, an automobile accident took the life of 21-year-old Rebekah Leah Rivera, whose strong civic awareness and deep spiritual beliefs contributed to her life of loving aid to church and community.

Rebekah Rivera

Rebekah, a 1997 graduate of Mary Immaculate Catholic School in Farmers Branch, believed in serving others — and a foundation established in her name continues to assist students from Rebekah's faith communities who best demonstrate that they use their God-given gifts and talents to serve others.

Eighth-grade Catholic students whose families are parishioners at any of the 75 plus Catholic churches within the Diocese of Dallas can apply for a $500 High School Spirit of Love Scholarship.

High school seniors whose families are parishioners within the Diocese of Dallas can apply for a $2,500 College Spirit of Love Scholarship. To be eligible for the scholarship, the student must offer proof of community service, provide a written essay and present at least one recommendation letter before the Feb. 25 deadline. Students are not required to attend a Catholic high school to be eligible.

More than $40,000 has been awarded through scholarships since 2005.

Rebekah's mother, Rina Rivera, said the foundation supports the development of young Catholic leaders who are working to make the world a better place to live.

"Our scholarship recipients have the kind of spirit and fire that makes a difference in many people's lives," she said. "We are just acknowledging them and affirming them on their journey. We are helping them monetarily to continue doing what they are doing now, and investing in their future."

SUN RAY CHINESE SCHOOL

Beating the competition

First-place winners in the recent Sun Ray Math Competition show off their trophies at Sun Ray Chinese School in Carrollton. More than 500 kindergarten through 10th-grade students participated in the math competition, and more than 150 first-through eighth-grade students competed in the 2012 North Texas Youth Spelling Bee held at the school.

PETS OF THE WEEK

SASHA

Age/sex: 2-year-old female
Breed: border collie/chow mix
Sasha is regal and attentive with a calm, quiet demeanor. She likes to stay in close proximity of people. She walks like a pro on a leash and takes instruction well. She will be a great companion for the large-dog lover, and would benefit from having a large yard to get plenty of exercise.

LANIE

Age/sex: 3-year-old female
Breed: striped tabby
Lanie is a shy, sweet girl, who responds well to petting and a soothing voice. She will be a great companion to a patient owner once she gets used to her new surroundings and has a steady, comfortable routine to follow.
