

MARY IMMACULATE SCHOOL

Students perform carols at senior center

SUBMITTED STORY

Students from Mary Immaculate School shared their holiday spirit with the community during their trip to the Farmers Branch Senior Center.

Led by Kathy Doak, the music instructor for the school, and accompanied by Thomas Wood, the music director for Mary Immaculate Church in Farmers Branch, the students presented Christmas songs and enjoyed refreshments with the seniors.

He's been ignored since grade school, but he could use your attention today.

Luis was born deaf in his left ear.

He struggled in school and faced seemingly insurmountable obstacles seeking employment. Now he's lost his hard-earned job and is unable to keep up with rent on his studio apartment. Life on the street may be his biggest challenge.

Poverty robs people of dignity, hope and the power to determine their own future, but together we can make a difference. The Dallas Morning News Charities funds 25 local organizations that help those who are homeless, hungry and able to rehabilitate.
